UNIVERSALIST STATE CONVENTION

Reports at New London Show Progress and all Churches See Their Way Out of Debt

With a full quota of delegates present from each parish in the state, the seventy-eighth annual session of the Connecticut Universalist convention was held at New London Wednesday in the South's Unitarian-Universalist church.

At 10 a. m. the convention organized. President Charles G. Lincoln of Hartford presided. After calling showing the full quota of delegates present came the appointment of committees.

The following committees were appointed:

Resolutions—Rev. J. C. Adams, D. D., Rev. H. W. Smith, Middletown; Mrs. E. P. Booth, Stafford.

Official Reports—Rev. F. A. Dillingham, D. D., Rev. W. A. Moore, D. D., George H. Clowes, Waterbury; Mrs. E. A. Tracy, Norwich.

Unfinished Business—Rev. H. E. Benton, Stamford; Arthur C. King, Meriden.

Religious Services—Rev. Howard Colby Ives, New London; Miss Harriet Prince, New London.

Elections—L. C. Sherburne, Danbury; Miss Helen Davis, Hartford; E. S. Grant, New Haven.

Frank Belden of Hartford and W. K. Bacon of Middletown were appointed auditors to make up a board of officers to be voted on at the election of officers scheduled for this morning's session.

Reports Show Progress.

The official reports followed the appointment of committees. The reports, together with the report of the state superintendent, Rev. W. F. Dickerman, of Waterbury, presented Wednesday afternoon, showed the convention to be the most largely attended in the history of the church society. There was satisfaction expressed in the fact that the full quota was present.

The reports from different parishes showed a most unusual gain in membership and in financial standing in each parish. The two new parishes, New London and Waterbury, were reported as firmly established and making a favorable progress as any in the state. Both are the results of the missionary efforts of the Connecticut Universalist convention trustees in connection with the Universalist central house at Boston.

The debt of the two churches has been lifted and the only church remaining in the convention in debt has arranged to wipe out its encumbrance.

prior to May 1911. Reports showed that every church has a settled pastor and is in fine working condition.

The church at Middletown, which has not been progressing satisfactorily for several years, has during the past fiscal year been placed on a firm foundation and has had great growth, both in attendance and in its financial affairs.

The report of the secretary, Rev. W. P. Dickerman, D. D., of Waterbury, followed. Then came a communion service, presided over by Rev. Mr. Ives. The morning session closed with a ministerial relief offering.

Afternoon Programme.

The afternoon session opened at 1:30 with an address, the principal address of the session, by Rev. John Haynes Holmes of New York city, whose subject was The Present Day Function of the Church. At 2:30 Prof. George M. Harmon of Tufts Divinity school spoke on What Can We Do for Our Ministry?

Both addresses were scholarly and full of valuable suggestions for conduct of the church in this state. The afternoon session closed with the report of State Superintendent Dickerman.

In the evening an occasional sermon was delivered by Rev. Mr. Ives, whose subject was The Universal and United Religion. Rev. William Channing Brown of Boston brought fraternal greetings from the Unitarians.

Today there will be a morning session, which will open at 8:30 with a conference meeting which will be conducted by Mrs. Howard Colby Ives of New London. At 9 o'clock the convention will go into business session. First will come reports of committees, then new business, and then election of officers for the coming year, after which the convention will adjourn.

Missionary Society Elects.

The Woman's Universalist Missionary society of Connecticut Tuesday afternoon elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Maud E. Cobb, Norwich; vice president, Mrs. Eleanor Palmer, Stamford; secretary, Mrs. Emma B. Hubbard, New Haven; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian E. Gay, New Haven; executive member for three years, Miss Belle Davis, Hartford.

Tuesday evening there was a public meeting at 7:30 addressed by Rev. Charles D. Conklin, D. D., of Boston.

BOSTON STORE HAS A BIG OPENING

Business Is Resumed on the Main Floor of the Shannon Building—Thousands Visit the Handsome Store.

Over a year and half since they were burned out on the main floor of the Shannon building, the Boston store has again resumed business there in a modern store, up to date in every particular and most inviting, light and roomy. The store now occupies the entire floor and is located in a fire-proof building, with advantageous display windows, and gives the company one of the best locations in the city. At ten o'clock Wednesday morning, the entire store, the main store as well as the Shannon building annex, was opened after being closed for several days in preparation for the event. The new part is finished in cherry throughout, there being counters about the entire floor, while two double counters extend the length of the floor. The fixtures are of the latest pattern and permit the display of goods in metropolitan style. There are wide aisles and plenty of room to move about. Silent salesmen are advantageously placed and with their wares add to the attractiveness of the store. Thousands visited the store Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The entrance to the new floor is by six swinging doors at the corner of the building, over which is a new electric sign, The Boston Store.

There are five large display windows which have been most attractively decorated for the opening by Morgan Cronin, the effect meeting with much commendation.

On the left, the entrance to the store are the leather and shell goods in silent salesmen, with much attention given to hair supplies. The ribbon and stationery counters follow in order, with the ladies' and children's fancy underwear next.

There is at the right the toilet goods department, the silent salesmen being filled with attractive supplies. The next department is the children's and comes the muslin underwear and infants' wear department. All this is shown in dustproof shelving with glass fronts.

The rear is the millinery department, which has the best of light from the rear windows. This is a handsome section, with the trimmed hats, and a window seat, with a window screening it from the floor, with two large entrances. Miss Kinnin is the manager here.

The counters through the center contain the notions, gloves, handkerchiefs, neckwear, handkerchiefs and umbrellas.

There is a brilliant display in the evening, with the excellent lighting from the store, there being 25 250-watt tungsten lights for the store, while in the show windows are 25 100-watt lights, making a dazzling effect.

There is the same entrance to the main store as before, with a fire door which can be closed at any time between. Throughout the store floor there were displayed bay windows, one standing at each side of the entrance, while about the shelving and at advantageous points handsome greenhouse plants added to the attractive appearance and gave cause for the extending of unlimited praise to the company for the beautiful store.

By the changes these departments are still found in the main store, at the right of the Main street entrance, patterns, black and colored dress goods, and silks at the rear. On the left is the sub-station of the postoffice, which has a building of its own, while adjoining this is the mens furnishings and at the rear the domestic department. The former ribbon counter will be used for special sales, while wash goods will be found along the center.

In the basement are the kitchen furnishings. The second floor contains the women's ready to wear apparel of all descriptions, with furs, carpets, rugs, linoleum, curtains and sewing machines displayed on the third floor. A pneumatic tube cash system is being installed to insure quick service.

In the center room of the main floor are the embroideries and linens.

Cutting Meadow Hay.

A fair crop of hay has been obtained from the Wadsworth meadow at Portland this season. The meadow contains from 1,100 to 1,300 acres of land, which is owned by over 100 persons. This land meets its owners a good income each year, considering what a small amount is expended for its maintenance, and each year the spring freshets cover the land and when the water recedes a deposit is left, which proves an excellent fertilizer.

Ninety per cent. of the material from which brooms are made in the United States is grown in Kansas.
